

Making Buildings Work

The Gherkin | London | 22nd June 2022

Commissioning - the progressing of a completed installation to full working order. But when does the process begin?

People often think of commissioning as the final exercise in bringing a building into use. However, to ensure occupants can properly use any building, commissioning needs to be considered at the very outset of the project and throughout each stage.

At the 2022 CSA Conference: Making Buildings Work speakers from across the commissioning and construction industry will provide insight into the correct way to design, plan and install building services to ensure optimum best practice and in turn a successful commissioning phase, leading to an effective and efficient building.

Join us on Wednesday 22nd June 2022 at The Gherkin, London.
