Airtech Premier Enjoys Highest Accolade At Industry Awards Ceremony

Launched just three years ago, the CSA Awards programme is already regarded by many as one of the building sectors most valued sector wide initiatives. By recognising and rewarding those companies and individuals that 'go the extra mile' and by acting as a motivator to encourage more companies to fulfil their true potential, the core values of the Commissioning Specialists Association are reflected through this annual awards programme.

With six categories making up the overall awards programme, and each one acknowledging a specific aspect of the sectors core disciplines, all of the winners are of course acutely deserving of their success.

For some however, the highest accolade is that of 'Commissioning Provider of the Year', which is given to the commissioning specialist who has achieved significant recognition from contractors or final end users for their services in areas such as technical expertise and advice, customisation of special needs, clarity of all documentation and on-time delivery.

Sponsored by Modern Building Services, the recipient of the award this year was Airtech Premier Ltd, a leading commissioning consultancy operating within the south-east region.

Although its core business has historically been Building Services Commissioning, a recent expansion has seen it move into Mechanical Services Contracting and Project Management. Formed in 2004, the company has consistently provided high levels of service to its client base right across the construction industry and has distinguished itself as a leader in the provision of practical and effective solutions to ever-complex building services.

The business is certainly not a newcomer to the CSA Awards, and in fact has been a winner in both 2015 and 2016, through its Engineer, Tom Bradbury, who picked up consecutive wins in the 'Engineer of the Year' category; for which the company is immensely proud. But according to the Commissioning Director, Dave Tye, who collected the award on behalf of the company, "To win the 'Commissioning Provider of the Year' award and to have the entire business recognised for its collective efforts is especially gratifying".

Fellow Director Steve Ashcroft added, "It is a great honour to be recognised by our peers in this way, which is testament to the hard work and commitment shown by our small, but dedicated team; each of whom contribute to our business success". He went on to say, "The awards ceremony was a great event, and a superb opportunity to catch up with so many old friends and colleagues."

This year's CSA Awards Dinner was again held at the Copthorne Effingham Park Hotel, near Gatwick Airport, on the evening of Thursday 15th June.
